PROPHET SALEH (SALIH)

In a large valley surrounded by high mountains lived the people of Thamud. They were very skilled at carving rock. They built wonderful homes inside the mountains and were proud of their great abilities.

PROPHET SALEH (SALIH)

Among them was a kind man named Saleh. He always called to them gently, saying, "My people, worship Allah alone. He created the earth and everything upon it."

But the people laughed at him. "How can we leave what our ancestors have worshipped for so long?" they asked. Saleh did not lose hope. He looked at them with love and sadness, and kept saying, "I only want what is good for you."

PROPHET SALEH (SALIH)

One day, a strong young man named Kanaan said, "If you are telling the truth, then bring us a miracle!"

PROPHET SALEH (SALIH)

The people gathered in the square, and Saleh prayed to his Lord to show them a sign. Suddenly, the ground shook, and a large rock appeared. The rock slowly split open, and a magnificent she-camel emerged. Her golden colour shone in the sunlight.

Everyone fell silent. Even Kanaan, who had been mocking him, stood frozen. Saleh said, "This is Allah's she-camel. Let her eat and drink in peace, and do not harm her."

PROPHET SALEH (SALIH)

The believers were happy. "Saleh really is right!" they said. But Kanaan felt jealous. "Will the people leave me and follow Saleh?" he wondered.

PROPHET SALEH (SALIH)

The days passed, and the she-camel lived peacefully. She drank from the well one day, and the people drank the next. But some of them began to resent her.

One night, Kanaan told his friends, "We must get rid of her." Some hesitated, but Kanaan insisted, "If we do not do it, everyone will believe Saleh's words."

PROPHET SALEH (SALIH)

On a quiet night, Kanaan and his friends crept to the place where the she-camel stayed and harmed her. She made a sad sound, as though she were warning them.

PROPHET SALEH (SALIH)

In the morning, Saleh stood sadly before them. "My people, you were warned," he said. "Now a punishment from Allah will come to you."

PROPHET SALEH (SALIH)

Three days later, a tremendous blast shook the valley. It was so powerful that the mountains seemed to move. The homes of the people who had rejected the truth were destroyed. Saleh and the believers, who had left the place, were saved.

PROPHET SALEH (SALIH)

On a hill overlooking the valley, Saleh stood with the believers. "We must learn that obeying Allah is the path to goodness," he said. "Pride brings only destruction."

Beautiful colours appeared in the sky, like a rainbow. Everyone felt at peace and began to think about building a new life filled with faith and peace.
